35TH ANNIVERSARY COMMEMORATIVE BOOK

"A Spirit That Never Dies"

VOL- 3 | 2082

I Wandered Lonely as a cloud...

I wandered lonely as a cloud,
that floats on high, over vales and hills.
When all at once I saw a crowd,
a host of golden daffodils.
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine,
and twinkle on, the milky way.
They stretched in never-ending line,
Along the margin of a bay.
Ten thousand saw, I at a glance,
tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they,
outdid the sparkling waves in glee.
A poet could not help be gay,
in such a jocund company,
I gazed and gazed, but little thought,
what wealth the show to me had brought.

For often, when on my couch I lie in vacant or in pensive mood.
They flash upon that inward eye,
which is the bliss of solitude.
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
and dances with the daffodils.

William Wordsworth

A letter from the Founder Director

Every day when I walk into Daffodil School, I feel a sense of honour, delight and a sacred responsibility. The students are in the most formative period of growth and development in their lives! To be able to touch their development at such a fundamental level is something we take very seriously.

Daffodil School provides a comprehensive academic and extra curricular program for its students. The school aims to expand both the students' expectation and their horizon, encouraging individuality and developing talent wherever it may be found. Above all, we hope that both students and their parents enjoy being part of a lively and positive institution.

We see our role as partners with the parents in the rearing of their children. We see Daffodil School as a place for the entire family to learn and grow and our commitment is in supporting the parents in their role as their child's first and most important teacher.

To grow in wisdom, age and grace challenges all students, staff and family members to work together to make Daffodil School's experience meaningful for each student as well as the whole community.

"Together we go from strength to strength."

HISTORY

Daffodil School is the first English medium coeducational school in Nepal to be granted the ISO 9001:2000 and ISO 14001:2004 certifications. The institution is run by a team of extremely experienced and well-trained teachers. It's on account of the professional manner in which we manage our institution that the school was granted the aforementioned certifications.

ISO 9001:2000 is an international standard that specifies requirements for a quality management system which meets customers' requirements and enhances customers' satisfaction. The ISO 14001: 2004 certification is also an internationally recognised benchmark designation. This certification proves that Daffodil School identifies, prioritises and manages environmental risks as part of our normal business practice. It also guarantees that, as part of our normal management cycle, our organisation is committed to preventing and minimising pollution and that we are fully invested in continually improving school.

MISSION STATEMENT

“Together we go from strength to strength.”

OUR AIMS

- At Daffodil, each child is considered a whole person with the capacity for developing the skills and attitudes necessary to make use of the opportunities that the markets of the future will provide them.
- We value everyone associated with our school, irrespective of age, race, gender, family background or ability.
- We strive to provide an unmatched education to all our students.
- In our safe and nurturing environment, we endeavour to motivate, support and inspire every child's personal, emotional and educational growth.
- Through our system, we are confident that they will acquire a wide range of knowledge and skills and a comprehensive understanding of the world.
- Ultimately, we aim to cultivate habits of virtue, discipline and self-efficiency in the students and to nurture the students to become the finest humans

Custodian: The Silent Strength of Our School

Daffodil's journey began in 2047 BS at Battisputali, in a rented building with a small playground but a big dream and a clear vision. Through dedication and perseverance, the school steadily grew into a trusted name in education.

Today, Daffodil stands strong across three locations in its own properties—an achievement made possible by the passion, hard work, and inspiring leadership of our Directors. As we celebrate 35 years, the journey has been filled with challenges and triumphs, each strengthening our commitment and shaping who we are today.

Having served the institution in various roles and now as a custodian, I feel immense pride watching Daffodil soar higher each year, nurturing confident, value-driven future leaders. Daffodil is more than my workplace—it is my second home and forever close to my heart.

Daffodil is not just where I work; it is where my heart belongs.

Custodian: The Silent Strength of Our School

I am honoured to be the Custodian of Daffodil Public School, Nayapati, Sundarijal. Daffodil Education always emphasized the all-round development of its students. Discipline is the backbone of education, and Daffodil strongly advocates it.

Daffodil has been contributing to producing responsible, intelligent and well-educated citizens for the country for the past thirty-five years and will continue to do so in the future too.

We are extremely lucky to have a charismatic and visionary leader as our chairman, and we have an excellent team of management and teachers too.

Our Class IV staff have contributed greatly to the smooth functioning of the school. Last but not least, we are grateful to the parents for their excellent support and for believing in us.

Thank you all.

From the Principal's Desk

As we celebrate the 35th anniversary of our school, I am filled with deep gratitude and immense pride. What began 35 years ago as a humble vision with a few classrooms and eager young learners has grown into a thriving institution that has touched thousands of lives. We have navigated changing times, embraced challenges, celebrated triumphs, and emerged stronger with every experience.

The true essence of these 35 years lies not merely in infrastructure or accolades, but in the character we have helped shape, the values we have instilled, and the lifelong bonds we have nurtured. I feel truly privileged to witness shy children blossom into confident individuals and to see young minds ignite with curiosity and purpose.

I extend heartfelt thanks to our visionary founders, devoted teachers, supportive staff, trusting parents, and—above all—our wonderful students, past and present, who remain the living heartbeat of this school.

Here's to 35 remarkable years of touching lives... and to many more decades of inspiring minds and uplifting spirits.

Daffodil Boarding School

From the Principal's Desk

It feels like yesterday that I walked into this school and today I reflect with pride on my 26 years of association with this institution, a journey rich in learning, growth and cherished memories. As we celebrate the 35th anniversary of our school, I express my heartfelt gratitude to our Founder Directors, whose vision and leadership laid the strong foundation of this great institution.

I also sincerely appreciate the sincere dedicated efforts of our management, teachers, the commitment of our students and the unwavering support of our parents and the staffs. It is the collective spirit that has helped our school grow not only in academic excellence but also in the values, discipline and character that define us today.

Bound together by trust, commitment and integrity, we have grown as one family. Honoring our past and embracing the future with hope, we remain committed to shaping lives rooted in excellence and guided by strong values. Together we move forward strengthened by our legacy and inspired by the journey ahead.

“The most difficult road leads to the most beautiful destination.”

This truly resonates with my life spent in Daffodil School.

As a young 24-year-old, we began this school in installments, then known as Himalayan Primary School. What began as a small dream has grown into a living institution, shaped by dedicated teachers, supportive parents, and generations of confident, committed students.

Guided by our belief in “A Spirit That Never Dies,” Daffodil has always stood for values, resilience, and service to society. My heart is filled with gratitude and humility as I thank and pray for all those who have stepped inside Daffodil and left their footprints behind.

 DAFFODIL BOARDING SCHOOL
 KATHMANDU

Over the past 35 years, countless young hearts have passed through the gates of Daffodil, each leaving behind a piece of themselves and carrying forward the spirit of our school. From the very first students to those walking our halls today, every Daffodilian has shaped the story of this place, making it a home filled with memories, laughter, and growth. This poem is for YOU.

To our beloved Daffodilians, then, now, and always.

Stars That Shine

Little hands, tender hearts,
Tiny bags held close with care,
Each dream unfurls in quiet starts,
Hope weaving softly through the air.

Some mischievous, some gentle and bright,
Laughter spilling in golden streams,
Joy awakening in eager sight,
Unfolding freely in their dreams.

Seven stars in a humble dawn,
Beneath one vast, celestial sky,
Each a brave and beating heart drawn,
Learning slowly how to fly.

They grew with the turning years,
Through lessons, loss, and playful strife,
Through whispered fears and shining tears,
Forging the paths that shape their life.

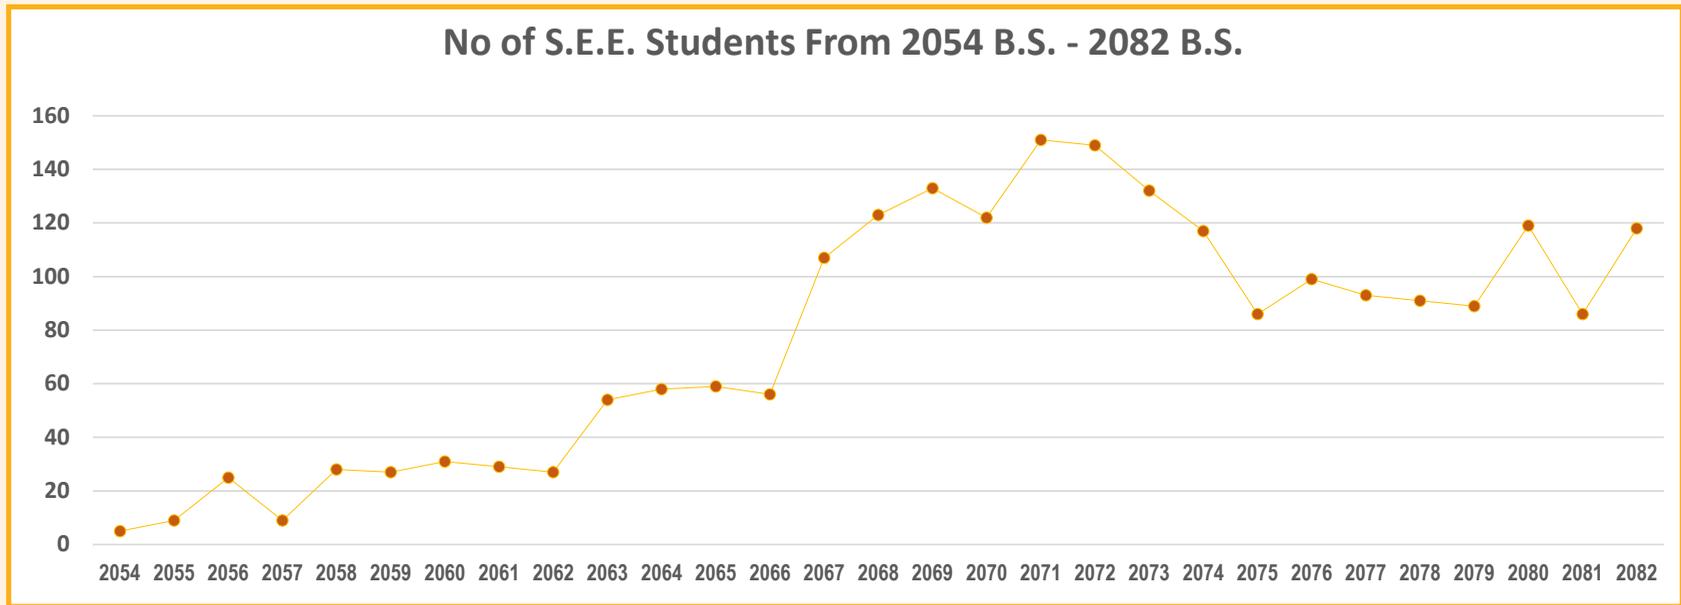

Now they stand tall, steadfast and true,
With families of their own to guide,
Carrying the values we held for you,
Roots of love ever deep inside.

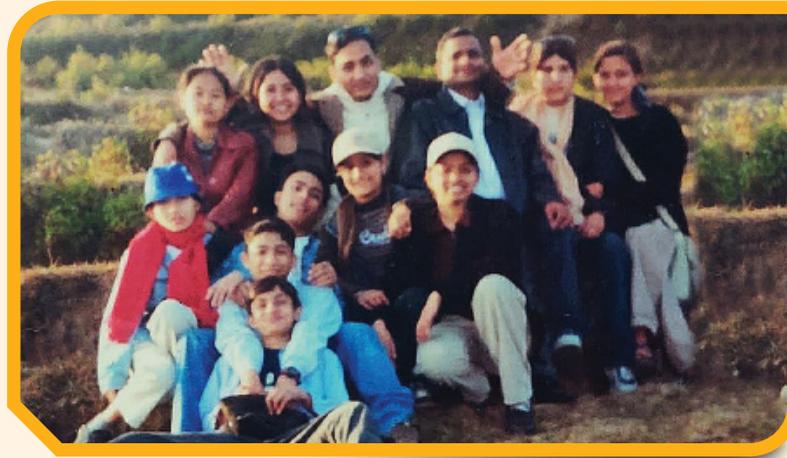

Paths may twist with time and tide,
Yet memories remain, firm and known,
Through storms and climbs and all beside,
Daffodil will always be their home.

Timeless Journey

A VINTAGE BOOK FROM THE UK TO THE HIMALAYAS

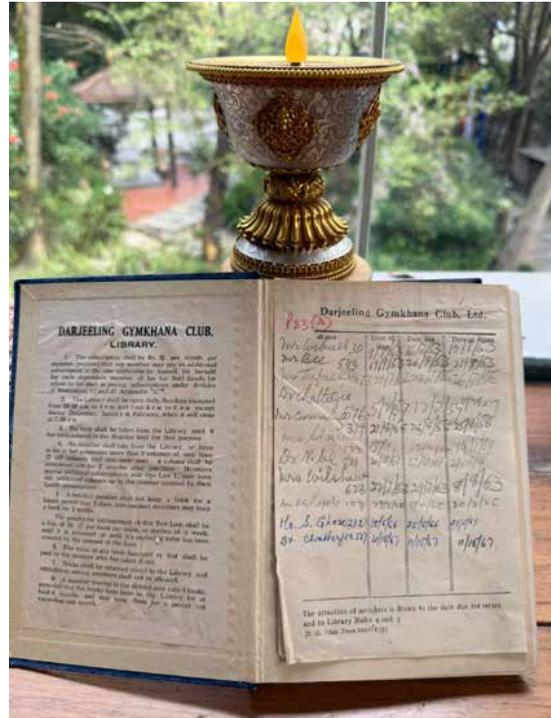

SOME GIFTS arrive quietly, asking for nothing, yet leaving a lasting warmth in the heart. Recently, my husband received one such gift from a friend, an old book titled Delight by J. B. Priestley, an English Novelist, (1894 - 1984). In the era of lost art of reading, to be presented with such a gem is so precious especially when the book was printed in 1949 at the Windmill Press in Kingswood, Surrey, Great Britain. I expected nothing more than a pleasant read. But when I opened it, I stepped into a small miracle. The moment I touched it, I felt a quiet thrill, as if my fingers had brushed against

➔ Inside the cover lay an old library card, fragile with age, yet alive with stories. It belonged to Darjeeling Gymkhana Club, opened in 1909, a heritage sports club, a place of retreat for the elite Britishers.

→ Advertorial

*Till to delight
Thou have paid thy utmost blessing..."*

In Simple Words

The poem is reminding us:

Notice beauty always Don't live life half-asleep. Give thanks for every joy.

Let your heart stay awake to wonder.

Inside the cover lay an old library card, fragile with age, yet alive with stories. It belonged to Darjeeling Gymkhana Club, opened in 1909, a heritage sports club, a place of retreat for the elite Britishers. The very place I grew up, where I used to skate in the wooden rink 35-40 years ago. Then married and moved to Kathmandu, Nepal. Back to the vintage book, I went, its earliest issue date read 17 March 1950, when Mrs. W. Ernest most probably tucked this very book under her arm and carried it home. After her came many more:

Mr. Griffith, Mr. J. O. Johnson, Mrs. Sam, Kumar T. K. Roy, Mr. Ogg, Major Willy, Mr. Puri, Mr. Lane, Mr. Malcolm, Mr. C. W. H. Ansell, Mr. Wilmer, Mr. Bee, Mrs. Tufuell, Mr. Cumming, Mr. S. Verma, Dr. N. De, Mrs. Wilshaw, Mr. D. C. Royals, Mr. S. Ghose and finally, Dr. Chatterjee, who returned the book on 11 October 1967.

As I read their names, I wondered: Are they still alive? Or have they quietly passed away, leaving their touch in this book as their only trace? Wherever you all are, please remember I am lovingly reading it, silently thanking your presence.

history itself. Published just before the Indian independence, it sent cold shivers through my spine as I noticed it belonged to a library; I felt a little queasy.

Yet, holding it, my heart twitched a little. This was once a beloved library book. How did it leave its home? Was it lost? Stolen? Borrowed and forgotten? Did the library close down? Did someone love it too much to return it? Was it sold in a dusty auction, or carried away unknowingly during some move? There was a muted ache in thinking of a book wandering away from the place it once belonged.

A sadness lingered at the thought of a book drifting away from its home, yet there was joy too. Perhaps this wandering was part of its destiny. Suddenly I pondered about my own school's library, do my students and teachers in my school's library take books, and not return them or lose them? Does my librarian take good care of all those books?

On the very first page, a gentle reminder by Walter de la Mare (English Poet 1876-1953) whispered:

*"Look thy last on all things lovely,
Every hour. Let no night
Seal thy sense in deathly slumber*

Another thought was I must try and find them on Facebook as they could still be hale and hearty.

Seventy-six years have passed since then. It survived post-war Britain, crossed into newly independent India, travelled through the hands of Britishers and Bengalis, and somehow accidentally or deliberately left its library home in Darjeeling.

A neatly pasted set of library rules felt like artifacts:

- A subscription fee of Rs. 2 per month per member.
- Opening hours for summer and winter.
- One book allowed for seven days only.
- Four books allowed at a time.
- No damaged books accepted.
- Fine of Rs.1/- per book per week.

Simple. Strict. Beautiful in its discipline. So, resonating with my school and college life in Loreto Convent, Darjeeling. How disciplined and simple life must have been then.

And so, after decades of passing through different hands, different hearts, and different lives, this 76-year-old book has found a new home with me in Daffodil Boarding School, Kathmandu, far from where it began.

From UK to India to Nepal, from 1949 to 2025, this book has carried history, memories, and silent companionship through generations.

Maybe books choose their own destinies.

Maybe some books wait patiently for the right reader.

Maybe this one waited for me.

And in opening it, I found not just a story I found a journey, a history, and a quiet, enduring Delight.

Hooked on Crochet: Crafting a Hobby with Heart

Crocheting, to me, is more than just yarn and a hook — it is a quiet conversation between my hands and my thoughts. With every loop and stitch, time seems to slow down, and the noise of the world fades into the background. What begins as a simple strand of yarn slowly turns into something warm, useful, and full of care. There is something deeply comforting about watching patience take shape, one stitch at a time.

I love crocheting because it teaches me that beautiful things do not have to be rushed. Mistakes can be undone, and effort always leaves a mark. Each piece I make carries a part of me — my mood, my focus, and my creativity woven together. In a fast-moving world, crocheting reminds me to pause, create, and find joy in the small, steady progress that leads to something meaningful.

"Children see magic because they look for it."

Lessons Between the Bell Rings:

Watching my elder brothers leave this school, I often wondered when my turn would come, never imagining it would arrive so soon. Much of my school life feels like a blur, especially with COVID stealing years into online screens. The version of me in grade seven was confused and broken by small friendship breakups that felt much bigger at the time. I questioned why those moments happened, only to later understand the truth behind "Everything happens for a reason." Those experiences, painful as they were, quietly shaped the person I am today and taught me that growth often comes disguised as discomfort.

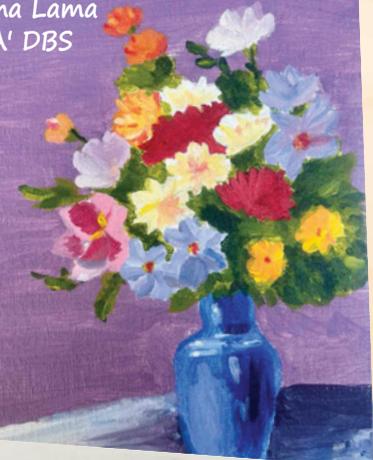

School taught me lessons no textbook ever could. Small yet moments that felt big then like, the fear of a principal's scolding, praying a teacher wouldn't check unfinished homework, finishing the project at the eleventh hour was, for sure, an unforgettable experience. It was the joy of getting to practice dance in free periods, hoping for games periods, rushing to play basketball during lunch breaks, and finding that one very special friend who gave me countless advice and always stuck by me through my hardships, that truly made my school years memorable and better. Most importantly; I learned that friendships are not about who you've known the longest; they are about who shows up when you need them the most. Most people say that $1 + 1 + 1 = 3$, but in our trio (Dohana, Aaliya, and me), $1 + 1 + 1 = 111$. We do not change ourselves in order to "fit" into each others lives. Our differences should pull us apart, but instead they create a perfect, chaotic balance. We fought, cried, and laughed, sometimes all in the same hour, giving proof that life is better when you have the right kind of people for company.

My School Life

From art to science, math to play,
Each subjects store I explore each day.
In school's warm halls, I learn and grow,
I am more than I was before, I know.

As days turn into months and months to years,
In school's grand halls, my future appears.
With every chapter, every cheer,
School prepares me for the world out there.

Friends I made, memories I weave,
In corridors where laughter lives.
Through tests and trials, I still believe,
In school's embrace, our dreams all rise.

Still Reaching

I learnt early that stars don't stay still.
They shine while moving away and even when falling down.

I tried tracing one falling star while I was a kid,
eager to catch that bling in my palm,
but I never found it & soon realized,
some lights are meant to fade & fall.

I wondered, if the sky remembered the falling star,
That's when I realized,
the sky remembers more than we ever do.

After I couldn't catch my falling star,
I kept my distance, even from the things I wanted close,
because, not everything that matters is meant to stay.

I learnt to count the stars without touching them,
made constellations without naming them,
made wishes, which were uncertain,
& loved without asking a reply.

"You can't reach the stars, honey" Mother said.
Yet I still reached.

I learnt early,
Stars don't answer letters
Yet I still wrote them.

सपना छन् तिम्रा पनि ती सबै मारेर
हिङ्छौ परिवारको इच्छा सबै पूरा गरेर ।
खै कसरी सक्छौ चिन्ता दुःख सबै लुकाउँछौ
घर आउँदा एक गिलास पानीले नै खुसी हुन्छौ ।

लाग्दैन डर कसैको मेरो शीरमा जब तिम्रो आशीर्वाद हुन्छ ।
अधि बढ्ने हिम्मत हुन्छ मेरो हातमा जब तिम्रो साथ हुन्छ ।
जब तिम्रो दुःख बोकेर हिँड्ने छु त्यो दिन म अति खुसी हुनेछु ।
जब मेरो मेहनतले तिम्रो सपना पूरा गरेर आउनेछु
अनि तिम्रो मुखबाट मैले स्यावास पाउनेछु ।
अहिले त म केही सक्दिनँ तर महसुस गर्नेछु ।
जब मेरो केही कमाइले तिम्रो दुई छाक टर्नेछ
मेरो ख्याल अनि सेवाले तिम्रो हरेक रोग नाश हुनेछ ।

The Joyful Ballad

Fine garments covered the lad's lean frame
And in his arm's embrace was a pretty dame
They saw many people making merry with joy
And off to join them went the maid and boy

They brought cheese and wine in stores
Many meats and in fine sweets yet more
And so in the frolicking they found their place
The couple were imps with a facade of grace

Off drinking and dancing they went
Every law of abstinence was bent
Perhaps a hundred mugs were drained
Before at last the sun had waned

Like a tempest given from their feet were swift
Like Fall's blown leaves all hearts did they lift
Hand in hand and with their hearts bared
They cast a spell and all were ensnared

In both dance and drink the couple were bested
By the lithe drunkards who were wholly invested
Laughter became another tune in song
It seemed the very trees danced along

Like silver moths all were drawn to the festive flame
Even the paupers bought gifts, the rich did the same
But what of the guests with the restraint of steel?
They felt the touch of elation with no less zeal

Song, dance and drink are the language of mirth
Its words were sincere, heedless of station or birth
Even the troubled were soothed by joy's embrace
Where could Hate find a seat in such a lively place?

The Daffodil

Beneath the sky so fresh and wide,
A daffodil blooms with golden pride.
It sways and dances in morning
light,
A little sun, so warm and bright.
Through chilly winds and soft spring
rain,
It rises up without a strain.
A sign of hope, of days anew,
Painting the earth in a yellow hue.

Timeless Memories

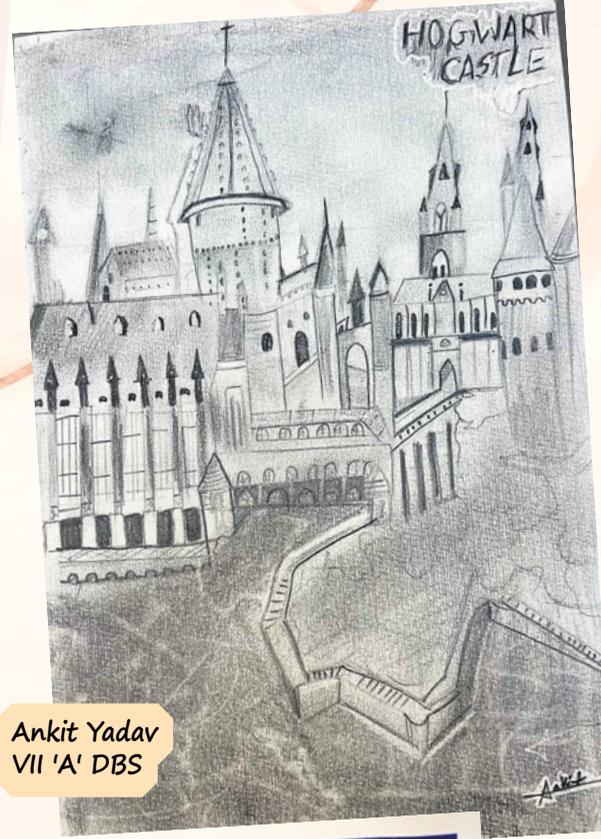

One of my favorite memories from school was cultural day. Me and my friends spent hours practicing our dance, laughing through mistakes, and cheering each other on. Performing on stage with that energy and joy made all the effort worth it—it felt like we were sharing a piece of ourselves.

The food was another special part, especially the Newari dishes that reminded me of home. Sneaking food with the Kumari backstage and sitting in a circle felt like family, it gave me a sense of comfort and belonging I'll always treasure

My Beautiful World

I wake up with the morning sun,
A brand-new day has just begun.
Birds are singing in the sky,
Their sweet songs make me smile.

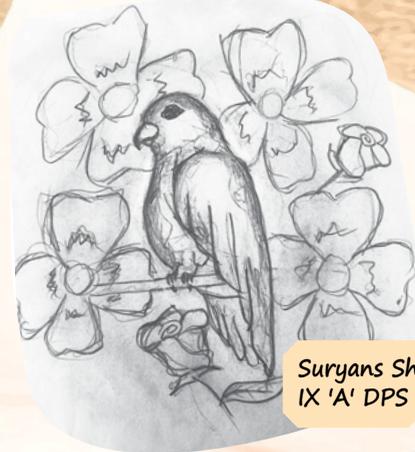

Green trees dancing with the breeze,
Butterflies fly with so much ease.
Flowers bloom so bright and gay,
They make me cheerful every day.

My world is full of love and light,
Dreams that sparkle, pure and bright
I'll keep it clean, I'll make it shine,
This beautiful world is truly mine!

Draft Mode: Living Between Versions

I live my life in draft mode—a version I'm afraid to submit, constantly erasing and re-editing myself, wondering who my revised, finished self will be. A draft is a state of becoming -- where mistakes are allowed, clarity takes time, and growth matters more than perfection.

Like the drafts we keep—whether a TikTok we watch a hundred times before posting or an essay we keep rewriting— we find ourselves zooming in too closely, tracing every flaw, plucking apart the parts we wish were different, like petals falling from a flower, sometimes gently, sometimes ruthlessly.

But maybe living in draft mode isn't a weakness. Maybe it's just being human. Drafts are messy, imperfect, full of crossed-out lines and awkward sentences—and yet, they move forward. They grow. I am learning that I don't need to be finished to matter, or perfect to exist. Some things are meant to stay unfinished, not because they are broken, but because they are still becoming.

And maybe, just maybe, that's enough. After all, even drafts have the power to leave their mark.

Our school is more than walls and rooms,
 It's where our dreams begin to bloom.
 Like daffodils in gentle light,
 We grow with hope, strong and bright.

With caring teachers by our side,
 They guide us on life's learning ride,
 They help us rise, stand tall, and see,
 The best that we were meant to be.

In this warm place, we learn and thrive,
 With values that will shape our lives.
 Just like a daffodil in spring,
 We bloom through all that learning brings.

A Day at Shivapuri

- An Unforgettable Hike

Our class went on an educational excursion to Shivapuri, and it became one of the most exciting days of our school life. What we thought would be a simple hike turned into a journey full of learning laughter and adventure. As we reached Shivapuri the tall tress, and peaceful environment was like nature's warm hug.

The hike began slowly, but soon it became a fun challenge. Some of us were racing ahead like mountain goats, while others were panting like tired puppies! Whenever someone got tired, friends encouraged them by saying, "Just a little more!" That teamwork made the journey even more special.

Our teachers also explained about different plants, birds, and the importance of protecting nature, turning the forest into our classroom.

The funniest moments happened in between the journey - slipping on leaves, taking silly photos, singing say, "Are we there yet?" Those five minutes just to drink water and songs loudly, and stopping every little memories made the trip unforgettable. After we reached the top, the view of the valley truly made us happy.

We returned with tired legs but heart full of joy & memories.

Our Journey Together

In this yearbook, we find more than just photos; we find pieces of our hearts. These pages are filled with the echoes of our shared laughter, the challenges we overcame, and the dreams we dared to dream.

We painted our days with the colors of friendships, faced fears together, and celebrated victories that seemed impossible. In classrooms and on fields, in the quiet of the library and the chaos of the lunchroom, we found who we are and who we want to be.

From late-night study sessions to unforgettable school events, from whispered secrets in the hallways to moments of pure joy—we've lived so many firsts together, weaving a tapestry of unforgettable memories.

As we turn this page, we step into the future with courage in our hearts and excitement for what lies ahead. Though we may travel different roads, the bond we've created here will stay with us, no matter where we go. These memories are our story, forever written in the book of us.

Always Together. Always Remembered

Our School Days

In the morning light, we start our day,
with laughter, games, and songs to play.
Books and pens, our tools so bright,
we learn with joy from morning till night.
Teachers guide us, kind and wise,
helping our dreams to touch the skies.
Each lesson taught, each story told,
becomes a memory we'll always hold.
Friends beside us, hand in hand,
together we learn, together we stand.
We share our secrets, smiles and fun,
and cheer each other till the day is done.

Cultural Activities

Cultural activities at Daffodil Public School are the moments where our school truly comes alive. They are found in the rhythm of footsteps on stage, in the quiet breath before the curtain rises, and in the shared smiles after a performance ends. In these moments, classrooms fade away and creativity takes over. We express who we are through dance, music, colors, and words, carrying pieces of our culture while also discovering new ones within each other.

These activities give us memories that stay long after the applause fades. They teach us confidence without pressure, unity without force, and joy without limits. Cultural programs are where friendships grow stronger, talents find their voice, and students learn that learning is not only written in books but also felt in the heart.

At Daffodil Public School, culture is not just celebrated it is lived.

Echoes of The Bell-

The final bell of our year tolls,
We brace the end as it unrolls.
A story etched in our souls.
Pictures sketched with aimless goals.

A stew of smiles and sadness,
Sinews of adventures and madness,
A toast to the life we once knew,
To the ghost of our presence that filled the school.

We came here as naïve souls yearning for fun.
A temple of learning and knowledge,
Masked as a prison, a place called hell,
But we will always miss its bell.

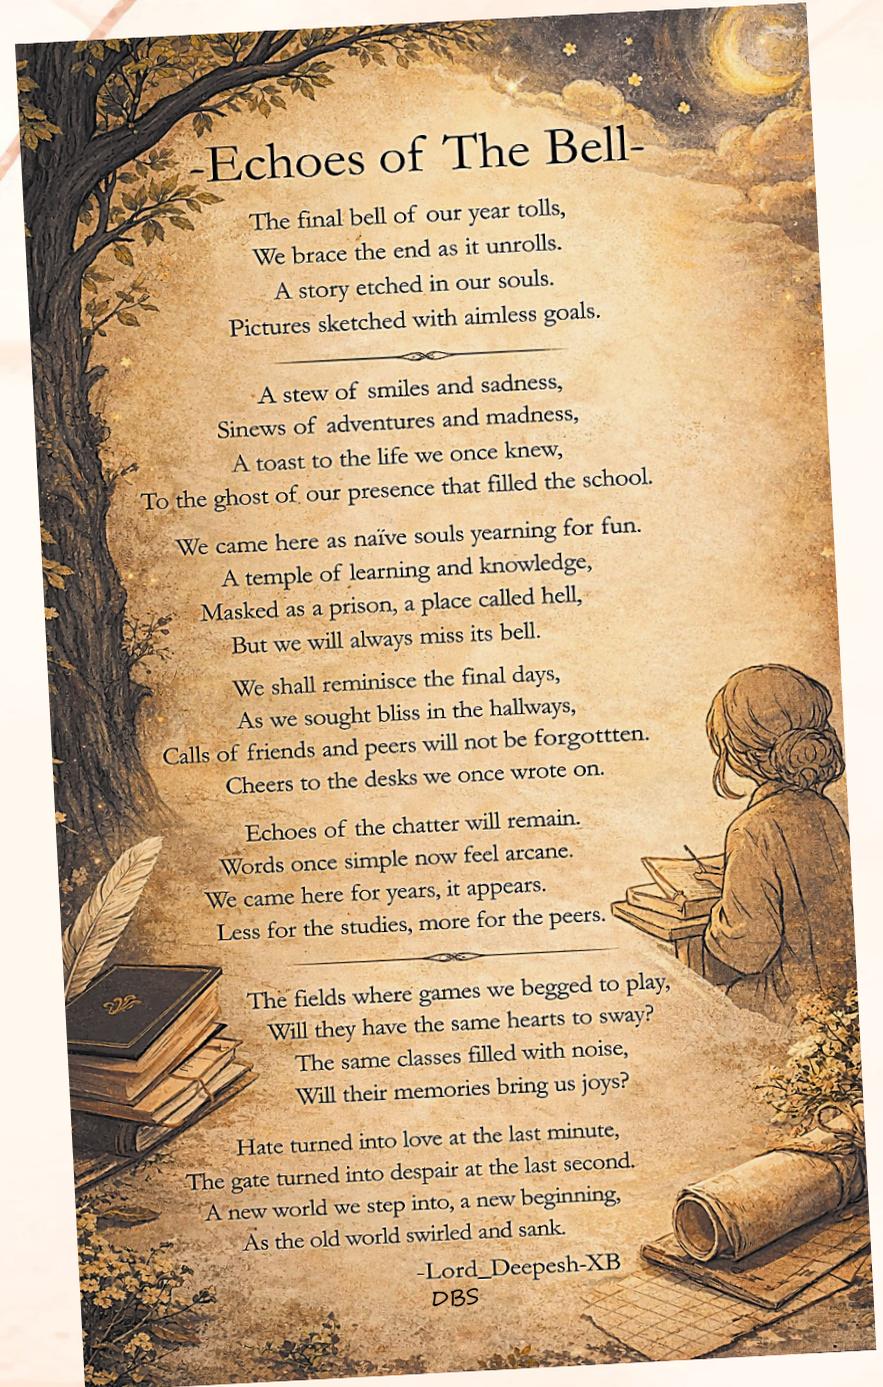

We shall reminisce the final days,
As we sought bliss in the hallways,
Calls of friends and peers will not be forgotten.
Cheers to the desks we once wrote on.

Echoes of the chatter will remain.
Words once simple now feel arcane.
We came here for years, it appears.
Less for the studies, more for the peers.

The fields where games we begged to play,
Will they have the same hearts to sway?
The same classes filled with noise,
Will their memories bring us joys?

Hate turned into love at the last minute,
The gate turned into despair at the last second.
A new world we step into, a new beginning,
As the old world swirled and sank.

WORSHIPPED IN RELIGION, ABANDONED IN REALITY

Misogynist men shout their hate - brainwashed women whisper it into generations.

Patriarchy often begins at home, quietly and early. A ten-year-old girl is asked to clean up while her older brothers remain seated at the same table. She learns where to throw the leftovers before she learns algebra. That service is expected. That obedience is coined as feminism. Her brothers learn the opposite – that the rest is their right, their authority and their inheritance. She was told to lower her voice and shrink her dreams, even walk softer, just so that the world could feel bigger. On the streets, she walks with her fists clenched with fear. Her eyes are lowered and steps calculated like survival math. Eyes stare and footsteps follow yet they are the first ones to bow down to her when the Aarti drums begin. Suddenly, she is lifted onto platforms with painted divinity on her face. She's suddenly Devi, Shakti, Mata and the divine feminine power. And suddenly, she is worthy of incense and hymns. For nine days in Dashain, we dress her in red and balance puja thalis on her hands. We chant prayers that praise her power. Cameras flash. Blessings are asked of her. Flowers touch her feet. Then on the tenth day, we abandon her. She's sent back to the kitchen where her spine breaks. The puja thaali is kept in a neat box, until next year. Devotion feels like dust in her lungs. They bow to Durga but fear real women with voices. They worship Kali's rage yet punish women for anger.

She is a goddess until she steps outside the temple. On the streets, her body is touched and taken then blamed for bleeding. She is worshipped as a symbol yet punished as a human. They kneel before her idols yet stand with their heads tall when little girls are silenced and deprived of her own words. Cook. Clean. Serve. Obey. Smile. Endure. Hypocrisy disguises itself as devotion. What type of worship is this – that fears a woman's freedom yet celebrates her image? She is sacred in scriptures yet unsafe on the streets. Divine in stories, yet disposable in life.

If she is only divine in festivals, then your faith is decoration. If her power is only holy in idols, then your worship is a lie. A lie that is wiped off with your red tilka. Do not worship women in stone while breaking women in flesh. This is not culture, this is convenience. This is not faith, this is fear dressed as tradition. Patriarchy still survives because women are conditioned to welcome it. Mothers teach daughters to serve and wives defend tradition. Girls remain silent and call it culture.

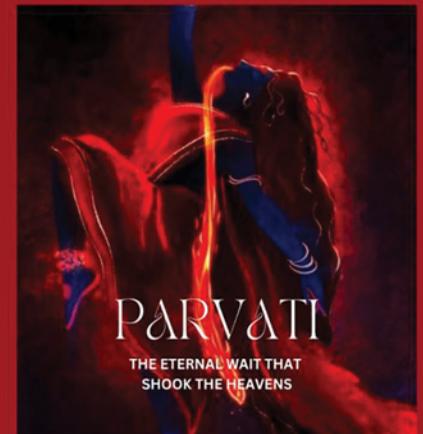

At some point, we must question our society itself – the homes that merge into male dominance and call it love. Who teaches sons that dominance is theirs by birth, while daughters learn silence as virtue? Who laughs when boys refuse chores and scold girls for the same defiance? Male dominance is not merely just a word, it is rehearsed daily. In living rooms, kitchens and conversations where no one objects. When a daughter is asked to fetch a glass of water, the son remains seated in deep rooted authority. Patriarchy isn't inherited, it is chosen, protected and passed on like an heirloom no one dares to question. Even our words train society to disrespect women, to equate power with masculinity and sin with femininity. Every insult deep rooted in female identity reinforces that women are property, not people. That their value is measured by obedience, purity and silence. We curse women to keep them small and remind them that rebellion will always be met with contempt.

*Worshipped
as Shakti, treated as nothing.*

Kali, the fiercest warrior, rips apart demons with unflinching strength. Her tongue is red with power and her eyes blaze with justice. Temple bells ring with devotion yet streets punish her presence. Real women are told to hide the fury, the rhythm and the courage we revere in gods.

Between the Bells

The morning rush, the heavy bags we bore, The frantic scribbling before the first-period bell. We've walked these tiles a thousand times or more, With stories only these dusty walls could tell.

The ink on shirts, the secrets shared in halls, The way we grew while no one seemed to look.

We thought we were just filling passing days,
Chasing the sun until the bell rang clear.
But looking back through time's gentle haze,
We see we were building memories here.

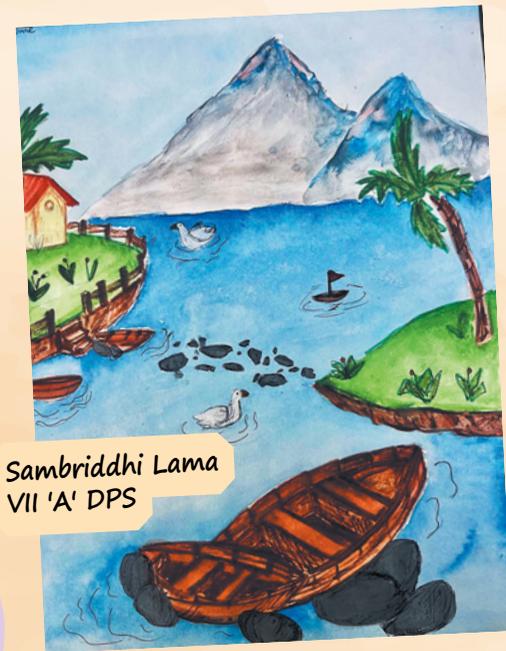

From shared lunches and the jokes that never end, To the quiet stress of every coming test. We leaned upon the shoulder of a friend, And gave our messy, loud, and honest best.

So here's to us, the class that found its way, Through every trial and every shared success. We leave a piece of who we are today, Within these rooms we're ready to confess:

That every joke and every minor victory, Was a thread within a tapestry of light. We weren't just kids rewriting history, We were becoming who we are tonight.

We lift our drinks; a toast to what we hold, As we ink these final memories in gold. I close this chapter with a heart of small moments, Tiny sparks that I will always carry. Through every storm and all our bright achievements, In the quiet corners of my sanctuary.

My Best Friend

My best friend laughs and plays with me,
We climb the hill and hug the tree.
We share our snacks, our jokes, our dreams,
And run together by the streams.

When I feel sad, she holds my hand,
With her I always understand.
No matter what, through thick and thin,
With my best friend, I always win!

My School – A Sanctuary of Growth

My school is not merely a place where lessons are delivered and examinations are conducted. It is a sanctuary where young minds are nurtured, friendships are cultivated, and values are subtly instilled through everyday experiences. Within its walls, we not only acquire academic knowledge but also develop discipline, resilience, and a sense of responsibility that shapes our character.

Every morning, the school awakens with vibrant energy—students bustling with enthusiasm, teachers guiding us with unwavering patience, and the familiar sound of the bell signaling not only the end of a class but also the progress made each day.

Our educators play a pivotal role in our development. They are not just instructors, but mentors who inspire us to believe in ourselves and strive for excellence, even when we doubt our capabilities.

My school also offers opportunities beyond academics. Extracurricular activities such as sports, debates, and cultural events help us discover our talents and build confidence. These experiences foster teamwork, leadership, and perseverance—qualities that remain with us long after we leave the school premises.

In many ways, my school feels like a second home. It is a place where mistakes are corrected, dreams are encouraged, and futures are shaped. Although we may not always recognize its significance, one day we will look back and realize our school played a crucial role in molding us into who we have become.

The Last Pages of Our School Days

The moments we thought would last forever, have quietly slipped into the past.

Long summer days filled with laughter and whispered secrets, slowly turned into winter mornings and tired eyes, and time passed without us noticing.

Now summer is almost here again, but this year's feels different.

Soon we will no longer share the same classroom, benches, or laughter that once filled these halls.

Life will move forward.

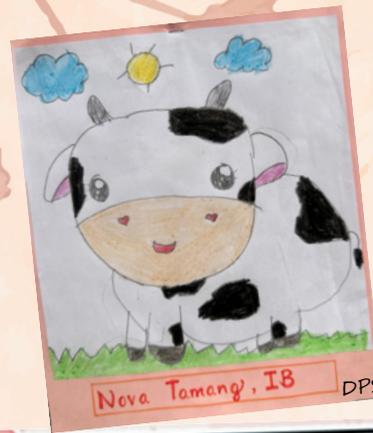

However, a part of us will always remain here.

Faces and voices may fade, yet the memories will stay with us.

These moments shaped who we are, and even when we leave these walls behind, they will live on in our hearts as the last pages of our school days.

WATER OR MAYBE NOT?

My hands,
They held water
But the water?
It kept draining away
Draining away drop by drop
A water that once helped me survive
Now drifting apart
Having me question every step
Every action
One simple obstacle
And now it's gone
I try to pick it up
But now I realize
Now every single drop
Could be held again
Some drops they might
But those drops
Just try disappearing
Among the hands
That held them once

Introduction of NCC (2074) Instilling Discipline, Leadership, and Patriotism

Daffodil School's Participation in NCC Programme.

Rashtriya Sewa Dal or National Cadets Corps (NCC) is a national youth programme run by the Government of Nepal, aimed at developing leadership, discipline, teamwork, and time management among students.

Daffodil School actively participated in the NCC programme from 2074 to 2082, with a 100-day training that included school-based sessions and an annual camp. Students were selected by NCC instructors and a medical team, forming a balanced platoon of boys and girls aged 13–15.

Daffodil NCC cadets excelled in cultural performances, public speaking competitions, and Youth Exchange Programme (YEP) events, performing at the Army Headquarters and international platforms with cadets from countries like India, Bhutan, Sri Lanka, Maldives, Malaysia, and Singapore. Several students won individual trophies and anchored major NCC events.

Notably, Zenden Wangmo represented Nepal in Sri Lanka (2076 BS), and Monica Puri led the final parade and visited the Maldives under YEP (2078 BS). The NCC experience has greatly contributed to students' confidence, discipline, leadership, physical fitness, and academic success.

Daffodil at the summit of Mt. Everest

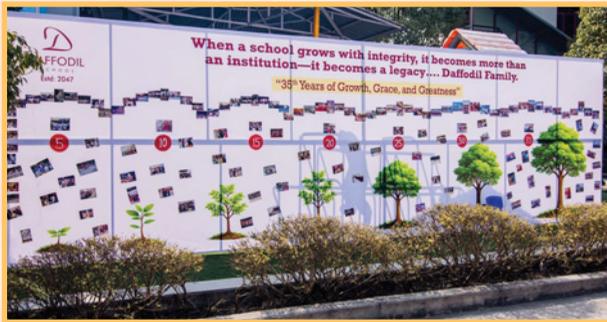

Mrs. Yangdi Lama Sherpa, a proud DPS parent, achieved the extraordinary feat of summiting Mount Everest—an extremely difficult climb that few dare to attempt, and even fewer complete. On her own heartfelt initiative, she hoisted the Daffodil banner at the summit, a powerful gesture of love and respect for our school and the happiness her children experience here. Daffodil School is honoured to have sponsored her journey with Rs. 1 lakh and is immensely proud to celebrate such a remarkable woman as part of the Daffodil family.
